Mission in Action

The PCC supports David McIntosh, co-director of the Centre for Minority Issues and Mission in Tokyo, Japan. David works with ecumenical and civil society partners to combat racism, particularly against people of Korean and Chinese heritage in Japan and he advocates for improvements to legal and administrative supports for vulnerable minorities.

Fighting Racism

Founded in 2017, the Centre is led by PCC mission partner, the Korean Christian Church in Japan, collaborating with other Japanese churches, Christian organizations and international church partners, including The United Church of Canada.

Through events, the Centre brings together youth to learn and think about the world through the eyes and stories of the vulnerable and to pray and listen for God's calling. The Centre seeks to develop a spirituality of reconciliation and peace that can respond faithfully to challenges affecting minorities.

A Life of Service

David is the son of PCC missionaries John (Jack) and Clarabeth McIntosh who served for 40 years with the Korean Christian Church in Japan. David grew up in Osaka, attending Japanese schools in a largely Korean community.

When in Canada, David speaks in congregations sharing the stories of transformation of this important mission.
